Edwardian Knole Sofa

An Edwardian Knole settee of traditional form with two drop ends secured with ropes tied around the leather-covered urn shaped finials. The loose-cushioned seat with sprung edge and two cylindrical feather-filled bolster cushions. Raised on lignum vitae castors behind the bullion fringed skirt. This sofa is from my own home and was traditionally upholstered in good quality sand coloured cotton velvet approximately 6 years ago (with only a couple of very slight marks to the seat cushion- please see images).
